A certificate of termination for a professional association must be signed by an officer of the association. If the association does not have any living officers, the certificate of termination should be signed by the legal representative of the last surviving officer of the association (BOC § 302.013). This is known as a “judicial dissolution”, which can be an expensive process, but is oftentimes the only viable way to break a deadlock between business owners. In the next issue of this newsletter, we will discuss the benefits of formal termination versus automatic cancellation by the SCC.
