Edward Wayne Edwards (born Charles Murray, June 14, 1933 – April 7, 2011) was a convicted American serial killer. Edwards escaped from jail in Akron, Ohio in 1955 when he pushed past a guard and fled across the country, holding up gas stations for money. After going AWOL in 1950, Edwards traveled and killed until 2009. Edwards was a writer his entire life, and his autobiography, Metamorphosis of a Criminal, was a published taunt to the police, press and courts, to “Catch Me if you Can” Serial killers generally murder strangers with cooling off periods between each crime. Many serial killers enjoy cannibalism, necrophilia and keep trophy-like body parts as mementos of their work. Never miss a story. Choose the plan that's right for you.
